Don't forget your stamp.

Get your monthly stamp at the admissions desks. If you have eight stamps, it's time to collect your prize in the Academy Shop!

OBSERVE BIODIVERSITY

Join us on November 17 for Scientist Saturday and meet Bolortsetseg Erdenee, a graduate student in Drexel University's Department of Biodiversity, Earth & Environmental Science. Bolortsetseg studies macroinvertebrates (macros).

Macros are underwater animals without a backbone and include crustaceans, worms and aquatic insects. The presence or absence of some macros can indicate the level of pollution in the water being studied.

Make your own observations! Visit a local stream and examine underwater rocks for macros clinging to them. Identify the macros you find with the key to the right. Find more images at macroinvertebrates.org. Return the rocks to the same location after observing.

If pollution occurs in the stream, some organisms may disappear entirely because they cannot tolerate degraded water. Pollution tolerant species will be abundant.
